The Women Development Cell of Gandhinagar University organized a Women's Day celebration with the primary objective of promoting gender equality, encouraging women's empowerment, and creating a platform where women's voices could be heard and celebrated. The event aimed to inspire the youth to recognize and support women in breaking societal and professional barriers, especially in male-dominated fields. By highlighting the achievements and struggles of women from different walks of life, the event sought to foster a culture of inclusivity, resilience, and collective growth. Additionally, it provided an opportunity for students to engage with real-life stories of courage, thereby nurturing a more informed and empathetic society that actively supports gender parity.

About Event:

Under the esteemed leadership of Ms. Vinita Rohera, Vice President of Gandhinagar University, the event took place on March 5 at NID Riverfront, Ahmedabad, commencing at around 6 PM. The event saw participation from approximately 100 students, including faculty members and students, making it a grand success.

The highlight of the event was a public interview initiative, where students conducted 100 interviews with women from different age groups and backgrounds, gathering their insights on societal upliftment. As part of Asia's first AI-enabled campus, Gandhinagar University distributed 25 digital tablets to selected participants from the interviews, further reinforcing its commitment to technological advancement and education.

To add to the spirit of the occasion, a mesmerizing dance performance on women empowerment captivated the audience. Following this, a Nukkad Natak (street play) was performed, shedding light on the journey of astronaut Sunita Williams. The play emphasized her struggles and achievements, inspiring young minds to pursue their ambitions fearlessly, especially in STEM fields.

The event also included inspiring testimonies from women who have faced hardships but have now emerged stronger and more successful. Their stories resonated with the audience, instilling motivation and hope.
